

from China

- Deng, Quheng (Chinese Academy of Social Sciences)

Deng Quheng got his Ph.D. degree in economics from the Graduate School of Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. Since 2003, he has worked in the Institute of Economics, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. His research fields include development economics, labor economics and applied microeconometrics. From 2004 to 2008, he conducted cooperative research at University of Oxford in U.K., University of Gothenburg and National Social Insurance Board in Sweden, Paris School of Economics and University Lyon II in France. His English language publications appear in China Perspectives and a forthcoming issue of CESifo Economic Studies, apart from dozens of papers published in Chinese. He also serves as referee of CESifo Economic Studies and World Development.

- Han, Hua (Beijing University)

HAN Hua is Associate Professor and Director of the Center for Arms Control and Disarmament at the School of International Studies (SIS), Peking University, China. She is an expert on, and teaches courses in International Arms Control, Disarmament and Nonproliferation, US Foreign Policy in Asia Pacific, and nuclear-related issues in South Asia. Han Hua has been a visiting researcher at School of International Affairs, Georgia Institute of Technology, USA, The Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI), Sweden, The Stimson Center and Monterey Center for Nonproliferation in Washington DC, The Victoria University, Canada, and the Peace and Conflict Institute, Uppsala University, Sweden. She has also written extensively on Arms Control, nonproliferation and China's foreign policy for journals and newspapers in China and abroad.

● Wang, Yanjia (Tsinghua University)

Ms. Wang Yanjia has experiences in researching energy efficiency in industry, energy policy and energy economics for more than 20 years. She has research experiences in France, Thailand, USA, Japan and Mongolia. She has worked with energy intensive industrial sectors such as iron & steel, cement, pulp & paper and textile. She taught a course titled “Energy and Environment in China” at UC Berkeley, USA. She is teaching a course titled “Enterprise Energy Management and Conservation” at Tsinghua University which covers the items of ESCO, financing energy conservation project, energy efficiency case study and energy auditing. She has practice at energy conservation in industry. She is invited as a guest lecturer at many training-on-the-job programmes domestically and internationally on energy efficiency technology. Ms. Wang received a B.S. in chemical engineering in 1984, an M.S. in energy system engineering in 1989, both from Tsinghua University.

● Yang, Yi (Beijing Foreign Studies University)

Assistant Professor, School of International Relations and Diplomacy, Beijing Foreign Studies University (BFSU), 2008-present

-Ph. D., School of International Studies, Peking University, 2004-2008

-M.A., Department of Political Science, Nankai University, 2001-2004

-A.B., Department of Political Science, Nankai University, 1997-2001

Academic awards and honors:

-Japanese Government Scholarship, awarded by Japanese Government for study and research in School of Law, Niigata University, Japan, 2006-2008

-The Zhang Wenjin Scholarship in International Studies, Peking University 2006

Publications:

Frederic S Pearson and Simon Payaslian, International Political Economy: Conflict and Cooperation in the Global System, translated by Yang Yi, Beijing: Peking University Press, 2006

“International Institutions and the Construction of a Harmonious World”, Innovation, No.5, 2007, pp.62-66

from Japan

● Ayukawa, Yurika (Office Ecologist & Osaka University)

Executive Director of Office Ecologist (member of Climate Action Network).
Special Professor at Osaka University Research Institute for Sustainable Science.
- BA from Sophia University, Foreign Language Faculty, English Language Division
- Master's Degree in Public Administration from Harvard University.
Was the Vice-Representative for "2008 G8 NGO Forum" for Toyako G8 Summit from February, 2007 to December 2008. Had been Climate Change Programme Special Advisor at WWF ( World Wide Fund for Nature ) Japan since July, 2007 to April, 2008. Has been working as the Japan representative in WWF's Climate Change Programme since 1997. Lobbied the governments on international negotiations and domestic climate policy of Japan. Proposed a cap & trade domestic emissions trade scheme in 2007. Worked on Climate Savers Programme to make companies commit to absolute GHG reductions (Sagawa Express and Sony Corporation from Japan). Testified at the Lower House Environmental Committee in 2002, and in 2005. Was a member of the advisory committee of the Ministry of Environment on carbon tax, Kyoto Mechanisms and "Capacity Building of Environment-conscious Workforce for a Sustainable Asia in Universities." Before joining WWF, worked at Citizens' Nuclear Information Center from 1988 to 1995. Mainly worked on transforming the Japanese energy policy to phase out from nuclear and stop going towards plutonium economy. Campaigned against the shipment of reprocessed plutonium from France to Japan in 1992, against the start-up of Monju fast breeder reactor, and against construction of Rokkasho Reprocessing Plant.

Publications:

"Decarbonized Society and Emissions Trading- A Policy Mix proposal" Jointly edited and written with Dr. Toru Morotomi (Kyoto University). (Japanese. Published by Nihon Hyoronsha, October, 2007)

Translation of "The MOX Industry or The Civilian Use of Plutonium" by C. Kueppers and M. Sailer (Japanese, published by Nanatsumori Shokan in 1995)

● Katsuta, Tadahiro (Meiji University)

Tadahiro Katsuta (Tokyo, Japan) has a PhD in plasma physics from Hiroshima University (1997). He is currently a Research Associate at the University of Tokyo. From 1999-2005 he did research on the economics of nuclear power relative to other sources of electrical power as an analyst at the Citizens Nuclear Information Center in Tokyo.

● Minato, Takayuki (Tokyo University)

Department of International Studies, Graduate School of Frontier Sciences, The University of Tokyo. Prior to joining the academic society, he had approximately ten years of working experiences both in Japan and U.S. Also, he was a resident in the U.S. and Thailand for 5 and 2 years. From 1997-1999, he was seconded to the Asian Institute of Technology as a JICA (Japan International Cooperation Agency) expert to serve for their academic program. Major research interests include Project Management and Decision-Making. For the last years, he also worked for influences of technology on society from social science point of view. Such studies have shown the aspects of technologies as a medium of technological politics. Recently, he has also got involved in a scenario analysis to discuss technological advancement and society.

-University of California at Berkeley, California, U.S.A. Ph.D., Civil Engineering (May, 1994) M.S., Civil Engineering (May, 1990)

-Kagoshima University, Kagoshima, Japan B.Eng., Ocean Civil Engineering (Mar., 1980)

● Yoshihisa, Ohno (Japan Sustainable Energy Company, Ltd.)

Yoshihisa Ohno has a career of 17 years for energy business, with the experiences of electricity, oil, gas, renewable energy, biofuel and global warming. His present occupation is an energy developer, energy researcher, and an energy journalist. In his career history, he served as a project manager, energy business planner, energy market broker, energy analyst and government official. And with subject to technical background, he acquired the Japanese national license of electric engineering. Presently he is the Managing Director of Japan Sustainable Energy Company, Ltd., which focuses on African, Asian and South American energy business. Equally important, he is now serving as an energy researcher at the Institute of Energy Economics Japan (IEEJ). Before he established his energy company, he took on the role of the Japan Promoter of GVEP (Global Village Energy Partnership), which is an energy organization established by the World Bank and the United Nations. He has also experienced a government official at the Ministry of Economy and Technology of Japan, where he had responsibility for CO<sub>2</sub> emission research. Moreover, he has served as a privatization staff of NEDO (New Energy and Industrial Technology Development Organization), an independent Energy Analyst, a marketer and Senior Business Planner at Mitsubishi Electric Corporation, and a crude oil broker at Prudential Financial Japan.

-MA Candidate of Tokyo University

-BA Holder in Business and Commerce, Keio Univ.

- Suzuki, Tatsujiro (Tokyo University)

Tatsujiro SUZUKI (Tokyo, Japan) has a PhD in nuclear engineering from Tokyo University (1988). He is Associate Vice President of the Central Research Institute of Electric Power Industry in Japan as well as a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Energy Economics of Japan and Visiting Professor of Graduate School of Public Policy, University of Tokyo. He was Associate Director of MIT's International Program on Enhanced Nuclear Power Safety from 1988-1993 and a Research Associate at MIT's Center for International Studies (1993-95) where he co-authored a report on Japan's plutonium program. For the past 20 years, Suzuki has been deeply involved in providing technical and policy assessments of the international implications of Japan's plutonium fuel-cycle policies and in examining the feasibility of interim spent-fuel storage as an alternative. He was appointed as a member of the Working Group on International Affairs of the Japan Atomic Energy Commission's Long Term Planning Committee and now is a member of the of the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry's Advisory Committee on Energy (Nuclear Policy Subcommittee).

- Pitch Sutheerawatthana (Tokyo University)

Post doctoral student at Tokyo University, research fellow of Prof. Minato, Takayuki

from Korea

- Cho, Heeyeon (Democracy Institute at Sungkonghoe University)

Dr. Heeyeon Cho (曹喜暎) is the Professor of School of Social Science and NGO Graduate School. He is also the director of Democracy and Social Movements Institute and Dean of United Graduate School in Sungkonghoe University. Outside campus, he is working as Co-Representative of Korea Council of Progressive Academic Associations(學術團體協議會). Now he is an editorial member of the journal titled Inter-Asia Cultural Studies: Movement. He has written lots of books including Social Movement and Organizations in South Korea, Democracy and Social Movements in South Korea, The State, Democracy and the Political Change in South Korea, and edited lots of books such as Breaking the barrier: inter-asia reader on democratization and social movements, States of Democracy: Oligarchic Democracies and Asian Democratization, etc.

- Cheong, Wooksik

(Representative of Peace Network)

Representative (full-time resident), Peace Network; Nonresident Special Columnist, Ohmynews(a leading South Korean web-based newspaper); Guest Columnist, Naeil Shinmoon(South Korean daily newspaper); Advisor, Center for Peace and Disarmament, People's Solidarity for Participatory Democracy (PSPD) He is one of the founding members and the representative of Peace Network(previous name: Civil Network for a Peaceful Korea), a non-governmental organization formed in 1999, working for peace and disarmament in Northeast Asia and on the Korean Peninsula. The reason why he founded Peace Network nine years ago, despite being so young and lacking of experience and academic background at that time, was that he felt so sad about the North Korean humanitarian tragedy. He thought that this tragedy would be resolved by making peace and reducing military spending on the Korean Peninsula. While striving hard to realize these goals with his colleagues since then, he recognized that it was much difficult to achieve them in the short-term. He has worked as a full-time staff member from the beginning of Peace Network to the present. As a peace activist, an independent researcher, and a journalist, he has organized many campaigns and conferences, written books and essays, and made speeches both in Korea and abroad. Due to these activities, Hankyoreh newspaper selected him as one of the "One Hundred Korean Young People who will lead the future" in 2004. -Master's degree, Graduate School of North Korean Studies, University of North Korean Studies, Seoul, Korea (2007) Major: Military and Security. A dissertation on the Realignment of ROK-US Alliance. -Bachelor of Art, Political Science and International Relations (August 1999) Korea University, Seoul, Korea(1993-1999)

Publications:

-Where is the ROK-US alliance going? (Seoul: Hanul Publishing Co., 2008) - North Korean Nuclear Issue and Beyond (Seoul: Pulbit, 2007)

- Chung, Jujin (Consultant on Conflict Resolution)

She studied conflict resolution and peace studies, and her specialty is public conflict resolution. She is a researcher, consultant and trainer for conflict resolution and peace building programs. She designs participatory trainings and workshops, and is interested in the scenario workshop method.

- Chung, Woojin (Korea Energy Economics Institute)

He is director of Dept. of Resource Development Policy at Korean Energy Economics Institute(KEEI). Since he joined to KEEI, Chung has involved various energy policy studies such as restructuring gas industry and opening and deregulating the petroleum market. Since 2000, he has studied North Korean energy system and the cooperation issues between two Koreas. Since 2003, he has participated the energy ministry's long-term planning and various policy makings on overseas resources developments. He is now acting as an adviser for government and public agencies on the North Korea energy issues and upstream policies.

- Choi, Seungkeun (Makus Investment CRC)

He is CEO of Makus Investment CRC(Corporate Restructuring Company) since 2008. He also worked as a CEO of Bando Industrial Company from 1996 to 2005.
-BA, MA in Yonsei University - Political Science (1983-1989)
-MBA in University of Leeds in England (1995-1996)

- Jang, Jungsoo (Hankyoreh daily)

Jang, Jungsoo is Executive Editor of the Hankyoreh, a leading progressive daily in South Korea. He joined the Hankyoreh in 1988 when the Hankyoreh was established in 1988 when massive anti-government protests across the nation brought about the end of the military rule which lasted about three decades in South Korea. He had worked for Asia Week as Seoul correspondent during 1983-1988. His expertise is South Korean politics, inter-Korean relations and security in Northeast Asian region. He studied in Sogang University, majoring in history. He was affiliated with CSIS, Washington D.C.-based think tank during 2006-2007 as visiting fellow. He writes column regularly for the Hankyoreh.

- Kim, Kyungmee (Women Making Peace)

Kim, Kyungmee is Activist of Women Making Peace, a specialized movement organization formed to realize reunification and peace on the Korean peninsula and to make peace in Asia and the world. She has also worked as Editor of Naarm to articulate the biblical call to social justice, inspiring hope and building a movement to transform individuals, communities, the church, and the world. She had worked as a director in Peace Network.

● Kim, Sunhyoung (Korea Foundation)

KIM, Sunhyoung is the Head of Research Team at the Korea Foundation in Seoul. She has previously worked at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, and at the Kazakhstan Country Office of the United Nations Children's Fund. She is currently working on her doctoral dissertation on energy security and international relations at Seoul National University, and holds an LLM degree at University of Warwick in the UK, where she was a British Chevening Scholar.

● Lee, Heonseok (Korea Eco-Center)

He is a representative of Korea Eco-Center, Korean Environmental Movement Organization. In 1998, he had graduated in electric engineering from Korea University. Since 1999 to now, he has worked in Korea Eco-Center. And he also had worked as a director of No Nukes People's Action (2005), the local people & NGOs Network for Anti-nuclear movement and Citizen's Energy Forum (2007), the NGOs Network on Energy issues. He is interested in nuclear power plants & nuclear waste (including intermediate level waste & spent fuel) issues. He has worked with another NGOs & local people who live near nuclear power plants. Recently, he is working to make ngos' solidarity network and to be opposed the spent nuclear fuel management plan of Korean Government.

● Lee, Sanghun (Hanshin University)

Assistant Professor, Hanshin University, Ph. D. Department of Environment Development, Seoul National University, Curriculum Vitae

-Ph.D., 2001 Department of Environmental Planning, Graduate School of Environmental Studies, Seoul National University

-M.A. Urban Planning, 1993, Department of Environmental Planning, Graduate School of Environmental Studies, Seoul National University (Award of Outstanding Thesis)

-B.A. Sociology, 1991, Department of Sociology, Yonsei University

Award and Scholarship:

Outstanding Thesis Award, Graduate School of Environmental Studies, Seoul National University, 1993

Australian Government Scholarship, Visiting Researcher at Department of Political Science, Faculty of Art, University of Melbourne, 1999-2000

- Lee, seayoun (Korea Foundation)

LEE, Seayoun is Program Officer of Research Team at the Korea Foundation. Before joining the Korea Foundation, she worked in the Foreign Affairs and National Security Department of the Presidential Committee on Northeast Asian Cooperation Initiative. She received BA in Portuguese Language from Hankyong University of Foreign Studies and MA in Economics from the Graduate School of International Studies at Seoul National University.

- Lee, Seungwon
(Democracy Institute at Sungkonghoe University)

He is a Research Professor of DaSMI (Democracy and Social Movements Institute), SungKongHoe University, Seoul. He is also in charge of the Globalisation Centre at DaSMI. He studied BA in Philosophy at Sogang University, Seoul. Since moved to UK in 1995, he had worked for MA in Philosophy and MA in International Relations at the University of Durham and Newcastle University. In 2008, he completed his Ph.D thesis titled 'The Limits of Democracy: the rise and fall of Anti-Communist Democracy in South Korea (1945-1972)' at University of Essex, UK. Between 2004 and 2008, as an official policy advisor, he also worked at the South Korean National Assembly and Democratic Labor Party, specially focusing on the foreign affairs and international trade. Now he is teaching politics and working for the government-sponsored research project related to Democracy Indicator/Barometer at the university. His current interests are radical democracy, globalization, alternative programs for local community and political/social minorities, and politics of solidarity.

- Lim, Jieun (Naarm)

Lim, Jieun is Activist of Naarm to articulate the biblical call to social justice, inspiring hope and building a movement to transform individuals, communities, the church, and the world. She had worked as a team-manager in Bible Korea.

● Oh, Kyungtaek (Chonnam National University)

Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, Chonnam National University (CNU)

-Ph. D. Political Science, University of South Carolina, Columbia SC, USA (August, 1998).

Dissertation: United States Policy on Whaling and Global Warming: the Role of Domestic Political Actors in International Environmental Cooperation

-M. A. Political Science, Yonsei University, Seoul, Korea (February, 1984)

Thesis: An Analysis of the U.S. Army Withdrawal from Korea in terms of U.S. National Strategy, 1945-1950.

-B. A. Political Science and Diplomacy, Yonsei University, Seoul, Korea (February, 1982)

Granted fellowships:

-CHONNAM NATIONAL UNIVERSITY, UNIVERSITY FELLOWSHIP (2006)

-Asia Research Fund, Co-project entitled Key Issues of International Cooperation in the Post-Cold War Northeast Asia: Territorial Disputes and Nationalism (2005)

-Korea Research Foundation, Frontier Scholar Research Grant (2004)

Selected publications:

-“Transnational NGO Activities on ‘Comfort Women’ Issue” [in Korean] 21st Century Political Science Review 17:1 (May 2007).

-“Conflict and Cooperation among Northeast Asian Countries Regarding Energy Resources” [in Korean] The Korean Journal of Area Studies 24:1 (2006).

● Shin, Sangbum (Yonsei University)

Assistant Professor, Department of International Relations, Yonsei University Wonju Campus.

-Ph. D. Department of Political Science, Indiana University, July 2004

Dissertation Title: From Red to Green: Economic Globalization and Environmental Protection in China Research Interest: China's Environmental Policy, China's Political Economy, International Environmental Politics

-M. A., Department of Political Science (February 1993) Korea University, Seoul, Korea (08/1989—02/1993)

-B. A., Department of History Education Korea University, Seoul, Korea (03/1985—02/1989)

Publications:

“East Asian Environmental Cooperation: Central Pessimism, Local Optimism,” Pacific Affairs, Vol. 80, No. 1 (Spring 2007), pp. 9-26

“Economic Globalization and the Environment in China: A Comparative Case Study of Shenyang and Dalian,” Journal of Environment & Development, Vol. 13, No. 3 (September 2004), pp. 263-294

Awards:

The 2006 Virginia M. Welsh Dissertation Award for the best dissertation in science, technology, and environment in the last two years, Science, Technology, and Environmental Politics Section of the American Political Science Association, August 30, 2006

● Seo, Youngpyo
(Democracy Institute at Sungkonghoe University)

Seo, Youngpyo is a Research Fellow of the Democracy and Social Movements Institute at the Sungkonghoe University. He received his BA degree from the Department of Korean History of the Seoul National University. He also involved student movement and social movements. Among these activities, he was an establishing member of the Policy and Information Centre of International Solidarity in 1997. He also worked for the People’s Victory 21 that is now the Korean Democratic Labour Party.

After finishing the MA course of Sociology at the Seoul National University, he took the MA and PhD course of Sociology at the University of Essex in UK. He got a PhD degree 2007 by the Thesis on the New Left Movements and Local Socialism in UK.

His research interests cover Marxism, philosophy of social science, ecology, sociology of knowledge, and social movements.

● Yang, Mikang (Steering committee of International NGO forum for History and Peace in East Asia)

Chairperson, steering committee of International NGO forum for History and Peace in East Asia

Co-chairperson, Asia Peace and Historical Education Network

Senior Pastor, Hanbaik Church

"In Memory of Her: Past, Present and future on 'Comfort Women Issue", The Theological Thought (Seoul: The Korea theological Study Institute, 2001.3)"Lost History and Rewriting History", Nation and Women (Seoul: the Christian Literature Society of Korea, 2006)

● Yoo, Seungjick (Korea Energy Economics Institute)

Director, Division of Climate Change and Conservation

-Ph.D. in Economics (Environmental Economics) Graduate School University of California at Berkeley Dissertation Title: Essays on Environmental Economics.

-M.A. in Economics (International Economics) Graduate School Yonsei University Dissertation Title: North-South Trade with Capital Movement

-B.A. in Economics Department of Economics Yonsei University

Academic Fields:

Environmental and Energy Economics, Trade and Environment, Econometrics, Applied Microeconomic Theory

Research Grants:

July 1993 ~ June 1994 Giannini Foundation "California Climate & Tree

Growth: Further In-Depth Investigation" Co- Principal participant with Brian D. Wright.

Publications:

"Specification and Estimation of the Transfer Function in Paleoclimatic Reconstructions," under revision. (with Brian D. Wright, Maximilian Auffhammer)

"Household Use of Agricultural Chemicals for Soil-Pest Management and Own Labor for Yard Work", Environmental and Resource Economics, forthcoming (Online publication 17 July, 2007 <http://dx.doi.org/10.1007/s10640-007-9142-3>) (with Scott R. Templeton, David Zilberman, Andrew Dablen)

● Emmanuel Pastreich

(Solbridge International School of Business)

Emanuel Pastreich serves as director of The Asia Institute at the Solbridge School of Business in Daejeon, Korea. In that position he leads the efforts of the Institute to foster cooperation between institutions throughout Asia in responding to challenges in business and policy including post-2008 finance, the environment, sustainable development, energy, nuclear proliferation and technology. Pastreich also serves as advisor for investment to the mayor of Daejeon Metropolitan City, Korea's primary technological research cluster. Pastreich is involved in attracting foreign direct investment, promoting tourism, and building strategic relations for Daejeon throughout the world in this position. He served previously as advisor to the governor of Chungnam Province for foreign relations (2007-2008). Pastreich was co-founder of the Daejeon Green Growth Forum, the first broad effort in Korea at the local level to bring together representatives from business, academia, and government to discuss environmental issues. Pastreich was co-founder of the Daejeon Green Growth Forum, the first broad effort in Korea at the local level to bring together representatives from business, academia, and government to discuss environmental issues. The Daejeon Green Growth Forum has been officially recognized by the Korean Ministry of the Environment and works closely with Korean research institutes, citizens groups, and industry. Pastreich writes and speaks about science policy, international relations, culture, and business. Pastreich worked in Washington D.C. (2005-2007) as advisor to the Minister for Public Affairs and the Minister for Political Affairs at the Embassy of the Republic of Korea and as an adjunct professor of George Washington University. Pastreich also served as editor-in-chief of the daily on-line newspaper "Dynamic Korea" of the Korean Overseas Information Service. In addition, he was director of the foreign policy think tank KORUS House run by the Foreign Ministry. Pastreich was best known in that position for the lecture series he initiated on East Asian politics and business known as the "KORUS Forum." Articles by Pastreich include a proposal to rebuild Sichuan's Wenchuan after the devastating earthquake of 2008 as an ecocity, an article promoting Chinese international cooperation in higher education, and a discussion of US-China geopolitical relations in which he argues that analogies to the Cold War are misleading and fail to recognize both the reality of and the necessity for close US-Chinese cooperation. Pastreich taught for eight years at the University of Illinois. He has a B.A. degree in Chinese literature from Yale University (1987), a master's degree from the University of Tokyo in comparative culture (1992) and a Ph.D. in East Asian Languages and Cultures from Harvard University (1997).

- John Sagar (European Commission to Korea)

Political Adviser at the Delegation of the European Commission to Korea:
Responsible for analysis and reporting on developments in inter-Korean relations, South Korean domestic politics, organization of visits to South Korea by EU officials and politicians, assisting in organization of EU-DPRK economic seminars and small scale training projects in the DPRK

Born and educated in the United Kingdom, he holds a Bachelors degree in Politics from Hull University in the UK and a Masters Degree in Diplomacy from Birmingham University. After teaching in Korea for six years from 1994 he joined the Delegation in 2000.

from Nautilus

Nautilus USA

● Joan Diamond (Chief Operating Officer)

Chief Operating Officer- Joan has brings to Nautilus an extensive executive background in the private and non-profit sectors. Her career has provided leadership responsibilities in business planning/strategy, organization transformation, all human resource and labor functions, internal consulting, financial management, grant writing, administration, supervision, human resource development, performance management, diversity, marketing, operations analysis, high-level facilitation (including uncertainty scenarios) and classroom teaching skills, compensation, mergers and acquisitions, research and consulting. As COO she is responsible for developing governance systems for the "nodal" dispersed structure of Nautilus; the international organization strives simultaneously for separate cultures and a central identity--this creates many unusual management, communication, and accountability challenges. As the Senior Scenarist, Joan oversees and facilitates scenario workshops on a wide range of human security issues.

Peter Hayes (Director of Nautilus Institute)

Peter Hayes is Executive Director of the Nautilus Institute for Security and Sustainable Development, a non-governmental policy-oriented research and advocacy group. Peter graduated with degree in History from the University of Melbourne. He has a doctorate from the Energy and Resources Group at the University of California at Berkeley. Professionally active as an environment and energy consultant in developing countries (working for United Nations Environment Programme, Asian Development Bank, World Bank, Canadian International Development Research Council, US Agency for International Development, United Nations Development Programme), he also writes widely about security affairs in the Asian-Pacific region. He was first executive director of the Environment Liaison Centre in Nairobi, Kenya in 1974-76. He was Deputy Director of the Commission for the Future (Australian Government) from 1989-1991. He has visited the DPRK seven times. He is a member of the Pacific

Council on International Policy, the Western partner of the Council on Foreign Relations; and the US Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific. He was awarded a MacArthur Fellowship in 2000

- Richard Moon (Senior Associate)

Richard Moon is a Senior Associate of Nautilus Global. He works as Director of the Listening Institute. He is the founder of extraordinary listening. Also he is Aikido instructor, an executive development coach, and musician, song writer, and author.

Nautilus Australia

- Arabella Imhoff (Research officer)

Arabella is a research officer at Nautilus Institute's Melbourne office at RMIT where she researches regional security issues and is the editor of the Austral Peace and Security Network (APSNet). Arabella has a Bachelor of Asian Studies and International Relations from Murdoch University and a Masters of Diplomacy and Trade from Monash University. Prior to joining Nautilus Arabella was working with a local NGO – Yayasan Usaha Mulia - in West Java, Indonesia, implementing a sustainable waste management project with a local community and Children's Village. Arabella has also worked with CARE Australia and has spent time working with NGOs in Myanmar and Nepal.

- Jane Mullett (Program officer)

Jane Mullett is an expert on circuses, that is, on the arts and politics, and is an excellent writer. She has just finished her dissertation on global circuses and Australia's contribution to the evolution of alternative circus. Within Nautilus, she is editor of the biweekly Austral Peace and Security Network (APSNet) report as well as other local and research support. Jane Mullett is currently a Research Fellow within the Climate Change Adaptation Program, in the Global Cities Research Institute at RMIT University. She was a Research Assistant with the Nautilus Institute at RMIT. She has also spent many years working in community theatre, circus and performance. She gained her PhD with a dissertation on the evolution of the global movement of alternative theatre and contemporary circus.

- Jonathan O'Donnell (Information Technology Officer)

- RMIT Information Technology Office
- Research fellow at RMIT Faculty of Business IT manager at Nautilus Institute @ RMIT
- Consultant at Melbourne University Multimedia project manager at National Gallery of Victoria
- Research officer at Melbourne IT
- Director of IT at RMIT Faculty of Art Design and Communication
- Project officer at Sunrise Research Lab, RMIT Project officer at RMIT Faculty of Business
- Administrative officer at RMIT Research Coordination Office
- Administrative Assistant at Chisholm Institute
- Clerical officer at Australian Research Grants Committee
- Clerical officer at Australian Government Analytical Laboratories

- Richard Tanter (Director of Melbourne Node)

Director of Melbourne Node- Richard Tanter was Professor of International Relations at Kyoto Seika University from 1989 until 2003. He has written widely on security issues in Southeast and East Asia, and his most recent books are Bitter Flowers, Sweet Flowers: East Timor, Indonesia and the World Community (Rowman and Littlefield, 2001) co-edited with Mark Selden and Stephen Shalom) and Masters of Terror: Indonesia's Military in East Timor in 1999, (Australian National University, Strategic and Defense Studies Centre; 2002; expanded US edition, Rowman and Littlefield, forthcoming), (co-edited with Gerry Van Klinken and Desmond Ball). He is currently working on Japanese security and missile defense.

- Saleem Janjua

(Program officer, Global Cities Institute at RMIT)

Saleem, Master of Engineering Science (Environmental Engineering)-University of Melbourne, is editor of AdaptNet with the Global Cities Institute / Nautilus Institute of RMIT University. AdaptNet (ISSN: 1836-2478) is a weekly report on urban climate change adaptation issues that contains links to 5 latest reports/papers, information on 1 conference or event, and occasional policy forum essays. Saleem is also undertaking a PhD at RMIT University. His dissertation, entitled 'Opportunities for Climate Change Adaptation in Developing Countries –

A Case Study of Local Governments, explores opportunities for climate change adaptation at the local government level in developing countries. Saleem intends to use scenario thinking in stage-II of his PhD research.

Saleem has more than 10 years of working experience in the field of environmental policy and management in South-Asian developing economies (working for Leiner Pak Gelatin, Crescent Greenwood, Pakistan EPA, United Nations Industrial Development Organization-UNIDO). His awards include Australian Development Scholarship (ADS; 2002-2004) and Australian Postgraduate Award (APA; 2007-2010). Saleem has written a number of articles/research papers.

Due to his practical and research work in the field of urban environmental management / policy, Saleem's primary research interest is in the problems of global urban change from a social science perspective, with the objective of understanding societal responses to global change problems and adequacy of institutional arrangements for formulating, implementing and evaluating plans and policies. During his PhD research, Saleem is developing expertise in strategy development, scenario thinking and strategic innovation in relation to climate change adaptation. Within this realm, his current research interests have three inter-related foci: integration of urban climate change adaptation and development objectives in developing economies; policies for sustainable development; and urban environmental protection issues

Nautilus USA

● David von Hippel (Senior Associate)

A Nautilus Institute Senior Associate based in Eugene, Oregon. His work with Nautilus has centered on energy and environmental issues in Asia, and particularly in Northeast Asia. He has done extensive analyses of the patterns of fuels use and prospects for energy efficiency and energy sector redevelopment in North Korea, trained and worked with a group of Northeast Asian energy researchers to develop and evaluate the energy security implications of different energy paths for their countries, researched and assembled a regional workshop on the environmental impacts of power grid integration in Northeast Asia, evaluated the prospects for "clean coal" technologies in China, prepared reviews of rural electrification options and of the impacts of climate change/sea-level rise in Asia and the Pacific, and contributed to many other Nautilus projects. He is currently involved in several Nautilus initiatives, including the multi-nation Asia Energy Security Project, centered around energy paths analysis, and the related East Asia Science and Security Network, which focuses on potential nuclear materials issues in the region. Also for Nautilus, he is involved in preparing an update to Nautilus' DPRK Energy Sector Analysis and in the DPRK Building Energy Efficiency Training project. In addition to his work with Nautilus, he works and has worked for a number of private and public agencies, including the World Bank, the United Nations and Tellus Institute/the Stockholm Environment Institute—US (Boston, MA), on a wide variety of topics ranging from utility planning and energy efficiency in the Middle East to reducing greenhouse gas emissions in several states and the Midwest region in the United States. Dr. Von Hippel holds M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Energy and Resources from the University of California-Berkeley, and M.A. and B.S. degrees from the University of Oregon.

- Heather Young (Manager/program officer)

Manager / Program Officer- Heather Young has been working towards environmental and social justice for over a decade on issues such as nuclear waste, sustainable agriculture, and toxics. She began her activist work as an organizer and policy analyst in a successful effort to stop the construction of a nuclear waste dump in West Texas. Heather received her BA from the University of Oregon in Environmental Studies and her MA from New College in Culture, Ecology and Sustainable Community with an Emphasis in Activism and Social Change. Most recently, she was the Activism and Social Change Program Coordinator at New College and served as adjunct faculty.

- Scott Bruce (Director of San Francisco node)

Scott Thomas Bruce is the Director of the Nautilus Institute's US Operations, located at the University of San Francisco Center for the Pacific Rim. Scott is the co-editor of NAPSNet, Program Officer for the Institute's Global Disclosure Program, and serves as Chief Financial Officer for the Institute's global operations. Scott was trained as a historian at both Queens University in Belfast and at the University of California, Berkeley. Scott also has a Masters. Scott was trained as a historian at both Queens University in Belfast and at the University of California, Berkeley. Scott also has a Masters Degree in Asia Pacific Studies and another in Business Administration from the University of San Francisco. Scott has also worked or performed research for the Berkeley Historical Society and the University of California Office of the President.

- John Withers (Information Technology Officer)

Nautilus Northeast Asia

- Kim, Jeeyeon (Program officer)

KIM, Jee-yeon is program officer at Seoul office of the Nautilus Institute. She received her MA in Yonsei University in internet (electronic) democracy. She has built up her interest in Internet democracy through activities of the IT (Information Technology) Association of Political Science. During her graduate school years, she worked in discussion camp program for training university students in Yonsei University. She is in charge of East Asia Civil Society training program. She worked as a research assistant for 3 years in ‘Kim Dae-Jung Presidential Library and Museum (kdjlibrary.org)’, mainly focusing on the democratic movements and Korea society. To analyze the democratization movement in Korea and overseas, she visited U.S. former-presidential libraries, NARA(national archives and records administration) in Maryland and collected, arranged, and summarized U.S. government documents on the topic. On March 2007, she visited pyong-yang city in DPRK to build electronic library in Kim Il-Sung University as a researcher. She worked as convention director of ‘international conference in commemoration of the anniversary of the June 15 South-North Joint Declaration’ in Kim Dae-Jung Peace Center from 2004 -2007. From 1999 to 2003, she worked as a web planner director in ‘department of public opinion and planning of the Blue House secretary office of the president’. She wrote report on internet-based public opinion every day, reported it to the president and replied the e-mail people sent for the president. She was in charge of internet-based public relations activities of the government agencies for better communication with citizens through internet. During her undergraduate years, she worked as a survey researcher in the Korea Institute of Public Administration (www.kipa.re.kr) for a year. She participated in the following research report: ‘A study on networking public administration and NGO’ in 1999.

● Lee, Jihyun (Program officer)

Lee, Ji hyun is a program officer at Seoul office of the Nautilus Institute. She is in charge of the Civil Society Monitoring and Verification Project (CSMV), which is examining the proliferation propensity of non-nuclear states. Prior to joining the Nautilus, Ji hyun had worked for humanitarian aid towards North Koreans at Nanum International, which is a non-governmental organization located in Seoul. As a senior staff at Nanum International, she was in charge of buying and shipping medical machinery and vitamins for North Korean patients and children. And she participated in meetings twice, held in Kaesung Industrial Complex, DPRK, for negotiating with North Korean secretaries of the Korean Council for Reconciliation and Cooperation. From her experience at a NGO for humanitarian aid, she could witness the meaningful progress of the relations between two Koreas since South Koreans have begun to assist North Koreans with food, medicine, and so on from the 1990s. And it draws her to be more interested in developing relationships between North and South and between North and other states, especially Japan and U.S. In this aspect, she is interested in the resolution of the North Korea nuclear issue. She began to involve in peace issues such as the resolution of nuclear crisis and disarmament in Northeast Asia by several working experiences during her master's course. She had worked at Peace Network, a NGO for working for peace and disarmament in Northeast Asia and on the Korean Peninsula for one year and worked at Institute for Policy Studies, a Washington D.C.-based think tank as an intern for Foreign Policy project. Ji hyun holds a bachelor's degree in law from Yonsei University and a master's degree in North Korean studies from the University of North Korean Studies.

Timothy Savage (Deputy Director of Nautilus Seoul )

Tim Savage is Deputy Director of the Seoul office of the Nautilus Institute for Security & Sustainable Development. From 1997-2002, he worked as Senior Program Officer for Northeast Asia at Institute's headquarters in Berkeley, CA, where he coordinated cooperative engagement programs with North Korea. He also works as Associate Editor at OhmyNews International, an Internet-based newspaper. From 2004-2005, he was Senior Analyst at the Northeast Asia Office of the International Crisis Group, a Brussels-based non-governmental research & advocacy organization working for conflict prevention worldwide. While there, he produced reports on several issues related to potential conflict in Northeast Asia, including South Korean attitudes toward North Korea; North Korea-Japan relations; and regional historical and territorial disputes.

Tim holds an M.A. in History from the University of Hawaii (1994), where he was an East-West Center Fellow, and a B.A. in History from the University of Chicago (1990). He has written extensively on security issues in Northeast Asia. His recent publications include "Japan-South Korea Ties on the Rocks," OhmyNews International, April 19, 2006; "North Korean Drug Case Ends with a Bang," OhmyNews International, March 30, 2006; "Letting the Genie Out of the Bottle: The Bush Nuclear Doctrine in Asia," (Asian Perspective, Vol. 27, No. 4, 2003); "Benign Neglect Again? U.S. Policy toward North Korea," (International Journal Of Korean Unification Studies, Vol. 11, No. 2, 2002); and, "Crisis in 2003? North Korea's WMD Program," (The Monitor, University of Georgia, Vol. 8, no. 3, 2002). He was also guest editor of Asian Perspective: Special Issue on the Energy Crisis and Renewable Energy Development in North Korea (Vol. 26, no. 1, 2002) and contributed to James Matray, ed., East Asia and the United State: An Encyclopedia of Relations Since 1784, Greenwood Press, November 30, 2002.

● Yi, Kiho (Director of Nautilus Seoul node)

Yi Kiho is Director of Nautilus Seoul node. He is also working as an assistant Professor at Hanshin University in charge of the center for Peace and Publicness. -He has worked in both academic field and civil society action field. He has been working as a lecturer since 1993 in Sungkyeol University, Yonsei University, Seoul National University and Ajou University. Since 2007 to 2008 he was working as a research professor/deputy director of democracy and social movement institute at Sungkonghoe University. He got his Ph D. in Yonsei University majoring political science with a focus on 'Social Movement Network in the democratization process of Korea' Between 1999 and 2002, as a visiting scholar, he studied in Waseda University in Japan, concerning on Local Civil Movement and Peace in East Asia. He teaches 'political change in Korea', 'social movement', and 'East Asia Civil Society' etc.

-Concerning on civil society activity, he had worked in Korea Christian Academy(Dialogue Academy) since 1988 to 1997 as a staff/senior researcher. Just after coming back from Tokyo, he concentrated in Peace movement in Korean Peninsula and East Asia as secretary general in Korea Peace Forum between 2003 to 2006.

Publications:

'Democratization and East Asia Civil Society' in Designing an East Asian community vol 3. (Nishikawa Jun and Hirano Kenichiro Ed. Iwanami, 2007)

‘Historical Reflections and New Challenges of Korean Peace Movements’.
Miraei-Gongbang, Autumn, 2007.

‘Peace in the Korean Peninsula and Civil Solidarity in Northeast Asia’ (APEC
2005 International Symposium, November, 2005)

● Jung, Minyoung (Intern)

JUNG, Min Yung is a senior undergraduate of Sogang University with a double major in Chinese Culture and Political Science. Her Academic works have focused on International Relations, specifically on the political order in North East Asia. Since her first major is Chinese Culture, she has especially focused on politics in China as well as its relations with North East Asian countries and the U.S. She studied at Georgetown University during summer, 2008 and she also studied at American University in Washington DC during fall, 2008 as a visiting student. She was a member of International Students Fellowship (ISF) which is a student association which helps international students to adjust better in Korea. Through the activities in ISF, she had a chance to meet a lot of foreign students who have very diverse cultural backgrounds, so she could learn how to understand and communicate with people from different culture. Their cultural differences helped her to wide her views to the world and to have open-minded attitudes towards other culture. That was the moment she started to be interested in other culture and people from different country. She was an intern at the consular office of Korean Embassy in Washington DC. Mostly, she assisted the vice-consul with arranging meeting, making report, and researching on particular issues related to Korea and the U.S relations. The most recent agenda that she had assisted was on a new exchange visitor program between Korea and the U.S which is called WEST Program.

● Nam, Wonmi (Intern)

NAM, Wonmi is an intern at Seoul office of the Nautilus Institute. She had entered Ewha Womans University as an English Literature and Language major, but she followed her curiosity on people and society, and is currently studying sociology at the same university. She has worked as a volunteer teacher at Aha! Sexuality Education Center for Youth since 2003. During her work, she was astonished to realize the seriousness of women’s rights situation in Korea. When she participated as a volunteer worker in 2005 East Timor Peace Camp, co-organized by East Timor YMCA and National Alliance of YMCAs in Korea, she was greatly touched by the courage and responsibility to grow as future leaders the East Timor youths showed. After her return, she became a member of University YMCA. As a member and the president, she shouted for women's voting rights in Seoul YMCA, organized green market day that sells secondhand and fair-trade products, and after-school classes for children whose parents both worked and had no one to take care of them.

Photographer

● Chang, Sooman (Photographer)

CHANG, Sooman started photography to see more of the world. After serving in the army, he entered Shingu University to study photography in more depth. He participated as a volunteer worker in the Dream Program (an international program, held by Kangwon-do in 2005 and 2006, that invites and teaches children from countries with weak winter sports in order to popularize them) and was strongly moved by children's friendship that transcends national boundaries, different ideas, and languages. Due to his endless craving for cultural experiences, he actively worked as a photographer of 2007 UNESCO Korea's 42nd International Youth Camp, and met many youths interested in diverse cultures. In 2008, He participated in UNESCO Korea's Youth Forum and witnessed their concerns on various global issues. While working as a photographer for 2007, 2008 Korea Youth Volunteers of Korea Youth Services Center, an affiliate organization of Ministry of Health, Welfare, and Family Affairs, he visited Laos and Cambodia where he saw young students who were in poverty but still pure and happy.