1. DPRK Nuclear Program

Associated Press (Joe McDonald, "RESEARCHER: NORTH KOREA HAS 'WEAPONIZED' PLUTONIUM", Beijing, 2009/01/17) reported that Selig Harrison, director of the Center for International Policy's Asia program, said Saturday he met this week with the the DPRK's nuclear envoy, Ri Gun, and other officials. "We are not in a position to say when we will abandon nuclear weapons," he quoted Ri as saying. Harrison said the DPRK's "much, much harder line" might be due to the rise of military hard-liners after leader Kim Jong Il suffered a stroke. "He has recovered and he is now making what is described to me as 'key decisions' but is not dealing on a day-to-day basis with detailed issues as he had done before," Harrison said. Foreign Minister Pak Ui Chun and others said the DPRK wants better relations with Barack Obama's government, according to Harrison. He said they want Obama to make sure the the DPRK receives promised energy aid and to provide help to revive DPRK agriculture, and that the DPRK wants its symphony orchestra invited to perform in the United States.

Associated Press ("N. KOREA: PRIORITY TO BUILD UP NUCLEAR DETERRENT", Seoul, 2009/01/17) reported that the DPRK said Saturday its priority is to build up its " nuclear deterrent force " to protect itself. It said even if diplomatic relations with the US are normalized, the DPRK's "status as a nuclear weapons state will remain unchanged as long as it is exposed even to the slightest U.S. nuclear threat ." The DPRK "can live without normalizing the relations with the U.S., but not without nuclear deterrent," a foreign ministry statement carried by the Korean Central News Agency said.

2. Northern Limit Line

Yonhap ("N.KOREA STAKES FRESH CLAIM ON DISPUTED SEA BORDER WITH S.KOREA", Seoul, 2009/01/17) reported that the DPRK laid its first claim this year over the Northern Limit Line (NLL) in the Yellow Sea. A statement by a spokesman for the DPRK joint chiefs of staff criticized the ROK defense minister for warning early this month against possible aggression by the DPRK near the NLL. "Until the day Korea is united, only the military border that we have drawn shall exist," the statement said. "We hereby declare clearly that our revolutionary armed forces will maintain the border that we have professed to the world," it said.

3. Inter-Korean Relations

New York Times (Choe Sang-hun, "TENSIONS RISE ON KOREAN PENINSULA", Seoul, 2009/01/18) reported that the ROK placed more soldiers at frontier guard posts and told its fishermen to refrain from sailing near DPRK waters on Sunday. In a statement read on DPRK television by a uniformed spokesman for the joint chiefs of staff, the DPRK declared an "all-out confrontational posture" against the ROK and said, "Strong military measures will follow from our revolutionary armed force."

Associated Press (Jae-Soon Chang, "NKOREAN NEWSPAPER RENEWS THREATS AGAINST SKOREA", Seoul, 2009/01/19) reported that the Rodong Sinmun renewed the DPRK's threats against the ROK Monday, saying it would "destroy and wipe out" invaders in "one strike" if ROK "war maniacs ignite the fire of war." "The Lee Myung-bak group should bear in mind that our guns and bayonets ... are aimed at their throats," the paper said in a commentary, carried by the official Korean Central News Agency . "We know no empty talk."

Agence France-Presse ("SOUTH KOREA VOWS CALM RESPONSE TO NKOREAN THREATS", Seoul, 2009/01/19) reported that the ROK Joint Chiefs of Staff office said army, navy and air force units remained on guard on the DMZ Monday after an alert was ordered Saturday evening, but no unusual movements have been detected in the DPRK. "The government is calmly responding, preparing for various possibilities but not making rash forecasts about future developments," unification ministry spokesman Kim Ho-Nyoun told a briefing.

5. PRC-DPRK Relations

Korea Herald ("N.KOREA, CHINA EXCHANGE NEW YEAR EMBASSY RECEPTIONS", Seoul, 2009/01/16) reported that the DPRK held a New Year reception for PRC diplomats in Pyongyang, the Korean Central News Agency (KCNA) said late Thursday. PRC ambassador to Pyongyang Liu Xiaoming attended the event, while Pak Kyong-son and Kim Thae-jong, vice department directors of the DPRK Workers' Party Central Committee, hosted the reception, it said. The PRC Foreign Ministry invited DPRK diplomats in the PRC to a friendly gathering on Wednesday, following a Tuesday banquet hosted by the DPRK embassy in Beijing, the KCNA said in separate reports.

6. DPRK Economy

Chosun Ilbo ("N.KOREAN FARMERS' MARKETS SLIP FROM CONTROL", Seoul, 2009/01/17) reported that the DPRK government said permitting farmers' markets to operate had been "a transitional step taken under difficult economic conditions," and according to a notice posted at Haeju Market, South Hwanghae Province, goods are limited to farm produce and clothes. All manufactured goods and imported products are to be handled by state-run stores. Markets are also only to be held once every 10 days, authorities announced. But the controls "are not effective," said an ROK government official. "They have become so essential to people that Kim Jong-il's orders don't get through."

11. ROK Military

Korea Herald ("ABUSE BLAMED FOR MYSTERIOUS DEATHS IN ARMY", Seoul, 2009/01/17) reported that the Presidential Committee on Suspicious Deaths said Friday that five Jehovah's Witnesses who mysteriously died in the military in the 1970s and 80s were harshly beaten and tortured by their superiors. "They died from military violence while trying to adhere to their religious conscience, and the state should bear responsibility for their deaths," said the commission in its statement. "The beating and brutal acts inflicted on them by the military should be classified as acts of torture, and clearly violate the human freedom of religion and of personal conscience."

12. ROK-EU Trade Relations

Agence France-Presse ("SKOREAN, EU MINISTERS HOLD TALKS ON FREE TRADE AGREEMENT", Seoul, 2009/01/19) reported that ROK Trade Minister Kim Jong-Hoon and EU Trade Commissioner Catherine Ashton began a two-day meeting Monday to try to resolve differences over the auto trade and rules of origin that are holding up a free trade deal . "We are close to a gate that leads to a new era," Kim was quoted by Yonhap news agency as saying before the meeting. "It will not be easy to resolve contentious issues, but having talks with an open-minded attitude is more important."

13. PRC Tibet Issue

Agence France-Presse ("TIBET TO MARK SUPPRESSION OF DALAI-LAMA LED REBELLION: CHINA", Beijing, 2009/01/19) reported that Xinhua news agency reported on Monday that the Tibetan parliament unanimously approved the motion to make every March 28 "Serf Emancipation Day " to celebrate the PRC military's crushing of a Dalai Lama -led rebellion 50 years ago. "On March 28, 1959, Tibetan serfs and slaves, who accounted for more than 90 percent of the region's population, were freed after the central government foiled an armed rebellion staged by the Dalai Lama and his supporters," Xinhua said.

Reuters (Abhishek Madhukar, "DALAI LAMA SAYS FAITH IN CHINESE PEOPLE UNSHAKEN", New Delhi, 2009/01/18) reported that the Dalai Lama said on Sunday he had faith in China's people. "Our faith towards (the PRC) government is getting thinner and thinner, however our faith in the Chinese people has never shaken." He stated, "Now it is no longer a true socialist country, but rather a communist, dictatorial, capitalist country," adding criticism of its leaders was more prevalent now. "Nowadays, in restaurants and shops, tea shops, criticism of leaders is quite common. So things are changing .... governments change, leadership changes, and eventually, the policy will also change," he said.

Associated Press ("NO CHINESE RESPONSE TO MEMO ON TIBET'S AUTONOMY", New Delhi, 2009/01/17) reported that the Tibetan government-in-exile said Saturday it has yet to receive a PRC response to its request for autonomy presented by the Dalai Lama's envoys in a memo two months ago. Samdhong Rinpoche, the prime minister of the government-in-exile, called the Chinese response "very funny" because they are "going around in Europe and America explaining their views" on the open memo.
