2. ROK on Naval Ship Sinking

Agence France Presse ("S.KOREA ACCUSES N.KOREA OF 'BLACKMAIL'", 2010/06/22) reported that the ROK's foreign minister accused the DPRK Tuesday of blackmailing the international community to avoid any censure for the sinking of a ROK warship in March. Foreign Minister Yu Myung-Hwan told parliament that the PRC and Russia were concerned about the DPRK's possible reaction to any UN moves "rather than the truth" about the Cheonan. But he added that the PRC and Russia would not want to be "orphans" when the international community decides on its response. The ROK will continue efforts to win over the PRC and Russia, Yu said, adding that 58 countries have so far condemned Pyongyang for the attack on the Cheonan and expressed support for Seoul.

Donga Ilbo ("`NK TORPEDO HAD QUALITY ASSURANCE MARK IN CATALOG`", 2010/06/22) reported that a catalog promoting a DPRK torpedo that allegedly sank the ROK warship Cheonan had the name of a DPRK economic organization printed on it as well as a certification of quality, a ROK government source said. The civilian-military joint investigation team found six parts of the torpedo written in Japanese after enlarging the weapon's design. This is because fonts were broken when design drawings contained in a CD-Rom were printed out on a Korean computer. A paper catalog made by the DPRK is also known to have been printed entirely in Korean.

4. PRC on Naval Ship Sinking

Xinhua News Agency ("CHINA TO SERIOUSLY STUDY ROK SHIP SINKING: FOREIGN MINISTRY", 2010/06/22) reported that the PRC said on Tuesday it was seriously deliberating on the joint investigation into the sinking of a Republic of Korea (ROK) warship and the responses of all parties. "The sinking of Navy frigate 'Cheonan' is a complicated incident, and China doesn't have the first-hand information. China will objectively and fairly deal with the incident in accordance with the facts," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Qin Gang at a regular press briefing. Qin said the Security Council was discussing the issue, and held an unofficial dialogue. "The statements by the ROK and the DPRK on that occasion will help the member countries of the Security Council to learn the situation."

Yonhap News ("U.S. IN CONSULTATIONS WITH CHINA ON N. KOREA: U.S. AMBASSADOR IN CHINA", 2010/06/22) reported that the United States has been in close consultations with the PRC on how to deal with the DPRK accused by Seoul of sinking one of its warships in March, the top U.S. envoy in the PRC said. "We've had many conversations with China about North Korea," U.S. Ambassador to the PRC Jon Huntsman Jr. said. "We've talked about the importance of supporting what South Korea is desirous of doing, which is taking the matter to the U.N. security council," the ambassador said.

6. Japan on Naval Ship Sinking

Kyodo News ("JAPAN TO SEEK INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION ON SHIP SINKING AT SUMMIT", 2010/06/22) reported that Prime Minister Naoto Kan said Tuesday Japan will seek strong cooperation with Washington and Seoul in handling the issue of a ROK warship allegedly sunk by the DPRK at this weekend's meetings of government heads in Canada. "It is crucial to enhance collaborations within the international community, especially between Japan, the United States and South Korea" while there are calls for the United Nations to determine punishment for the DPRK over the deadly sinking in March, Kan said at a meeting of his Cabinet ministers related to the issue.

7. DPRK-Japan Illicit Trade

Global Security Newswire ("JAPANESE FIRMS SUSPECTED OF SELLING NORTH KOREA POSSIBLE MISSILE PARTS", 2010/06/22) reported that the presidents of two Japanese firms are expected to be detained today based on suspicions that they illicitly sold equipment to the DPRK that could be used in the country's missile development program, Kyodo News reported. Japanese authorities planned to arrest the two executives in southwestern Japan's Kyushu region for purportedly violating a ban on sending the DPRK power shovels, equipment considered "dual use" technology that the aspiring nuclear power could use for launch pads for its Taepodong and Rodong missiles.

8. Inter-Korea Relations

Associated Press (Claire Lee, "SKOREA, JAPAN ACTIVISTS FLY LEAFLETS TOWARD NKOREA", Cheorwon, 2010/06/23) reported that ROK and Japanese activists floated hundreds of thousands of leaflets by balloon toward the border with the DPRK on Wednesday. The leaflets criticized DPRK's late founding father Kim Il Sung for starting the Korean War and blamed the current government led by his son, Kim Jong Il, for a botched currency reform and the downing of the warship Cheonan.

9. DPRK Leadership

Agence France Presse ("N.KOREA WORKER'S FUNDS 'DIVERTED TO LEADERSHIP'", 2010/06/22) reported that the DPRK has diverted tens of millions of dollars earned by its workers on African construction projects into secret funds managed by leader Kim Jong-Il, a report said Tuesday. The impoverished country has earned more than 160 million dollars since early 2000 in orders from African countries for sculptures and other edifices, said Daily NK, a Seoul-based online newspaper run by defectors. It said the money has been managed by the communist party's Department 39, which raises personal funds for Kim by controlling key state corporations and financial institutions." Some of these dollars are used for domestic governance while the others go to secret accounts in Switzerland or Macau as Kim Jong-Il's secret funds," it quoted a source in the PRC as saying.

Chosun Ilbo ("KIM JONG-IL RESTORES SPECIAL DEPARTMENT TO SWELL COFFERS", 2010/06/22) reported that the DPRK in March restored a special department in the Workers Party codenamed Room 38 which manages leader Kim Jong-il's coffers and personal slush funds,. The DPRK last fall merged Room 38 with Room 39, which manages party slush funds. "Rooms 38 and 39 were merged to simplify Kim Jong-il's slush funds," said a DPRK source. "But when it became difficult to secure hard currency due to international sanctions, Room 38 seems to have been restored because there was a feeling that Room 39 alone can't meet the need." Room 39 tries to maximize earnings from gold and zinc mining and farming and fisheries. It also manages stores and hotels exclusively for foreigners in Pyongyang. Room 39 seems to have suffered badly due to the recent suspension of inter-Korean trade.

11. DPRK Environment

Agence France Presse ("NORTH KOREA SAYS PUTS "GREAT EFFORT" INTO ENVIRONMENT", 2010/06/22) reported that state media said on Tuesday scientists were inventing new ways to cut air pollution and protect the environment. The country "has directed a great effort" to research environmental protection, the state news agency KCNA reported. "Researchers have developed a new material for removing exhaust fumes from automobiles so as to cut the greenhouse gas emissions and reduce air pollution 35-40 percent," it said, without elaborating. It also said "units" in the capital, Pyongyang, that caused pollution had been registered, suggesting that dirty industries were under pressure to get clean.

12. DPRK Human Rights

Agence France Presse ("US HOPES NEW UN RIGHTS RAPPORTEUR CAN ENTER N.KOREA ", 2010/06/22) reported that the United States said it hopes the new UN human rights rapporteur for the DPRK will be able to enter the reclusive Stalinist state after his predecessor never gained access. "The United States welcomes the announcement of Marzuki Darusman as the special UN rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the DPRK," State Department spokesman Philip Crowley said. "The United States hopes the North Korean government will grant Mr Darusman access to North Korea to observe conditions inside the country and hold direct discussions on human rights issues." "The United States remains deeply concerned about the human rights situation in North Korea and the plight of North Korean refugees," he added.

13. DPRK Humanitarian Aid

Korea Herald ("HUMANITARIAN GROUP CALLS FOR DEFUSING OF TENSION", 2010/06/22) reported that a global humanitarian group Tuesday called for a defusing of mounting peninsular tension to continue providing humanitarian aid to the DPRK. This is because such aid will eventually reach out to people in the region to bring about change in the regime, according to Lesley-Anne Knight, secretary-general of Caritas Internationalis. "In our experience, humanitarian aid dampens tension because we are working at the grass roots level, and change comes from the bottom up," Knight said in a press conference in Seoul. She noted how hardliners may believe all types of aid should be halted to punish the DPRK, but stressed that such moves would cause only further conflict.

14. ROK on Six-Party Talks

Yonhap News ("FM RULES OUT SIX-WAY TALKS BEFORE RESOLVING CHEONAN INCIDENT", 2010/06/22) reported that the ROK will consider discussing the resumption of international disarmament talks on the DPRK's nuclear programs only after giving the communist nation a stern international response over the sinking of a ROK warship, the foreign minister said Tuesday. "As North Korea was found to have sunk the warship Cheonan, the government will concentrate on the Cheonan incident at this stage," Foreign Minister Yu Myung-hwan told a parliamentary meeting. "(The government) will consult related countries on resuming six-party talks after completing its response."

15. ROK Naval Ship Sinking

Associated Press ("ACTIVIST BLAMES SKOREA'S LEADER FOR SHIP SINKING", 2010/06/22) reported that a ROK activist on an unauthorized trip to the DPRK on Tuesday blamed his country's conservative president — not the communist DPRK — for the deadly sinking of one of Seoul's warships. Rev. Han Sang-ryol who works for Seoul-based Korea Alliance Progressive Movements, gave a rare news conference Tuesday in Pyongyang, criticizing ROK President Lee Myung-bak for allegedly discarding past rapprochement accords with the DPRK and raising tension by staging joint military exercises with the United States. "One thing is clear, that Lee Myung-bak is to blame for the incident," Han said, according to video footage from APTN in Pyongyang, referring to the sinking of the Cheonan warship.

16. PRC on ROK-US Military Cooperation

Reuters ("CHINA SAYS "CONCERNED" ABOUT SOUTH KOREA-U.S. DRILL", 2010/06/22) reported that the PRC said on Tuesday it was concerned about reports that a U.S. aircraft carrier may join a military exercise with the ROK amid a tense standoff with the DPRK over the sinking of a ROK warship. PRC Foreign Ministry spokesman Qin Gang said he had seen the reports about the U.S. aircraft carrier joining the drill. "We're extremely concerned about these reports and will closely follow developments," he told a news conference. He said the PRC was worried the show of naval force could unsettle the region. "Under current circumstances, all the parties concerned should exercise calm and restraint and do nothing to escalate tensions and harm the interests of countries in this region," Qin said.

During the 20-minute flight, the third prototype flew at an altitude of 2,000 feet with a cruising speed of 140 knots (260 kilometers) per hour, the report said. "It is a historic day today as the Surion completed its initial flight tests," Defense Minister Kim Tae-young was quoted as saying. "The successful development of the Surion laid groundwork for the nation's aviation industry to stand on its own feet and the military to increase its combat capabilities," Kim said in his congratulatory message.

"I would like to make every effort to ease the burden while conforming with the Japan-U.S. agreement," Kan said in a meeting with Okinawa Gov. Hirokazu Nakaima. A spokesman for the Japanese delegation at the International Whaling Commission (IWC) also lashed out at green groups, accusing them of spreading lies and manipulating public opinion. "Japan has compromised," said spokesman Glenn Inwood in an interview. "Anti-whaling countries have offered nothing. If this process is going to survive, it requires compromise from both sides."

22. PRC Ethnic Unrest

Associated Press ("CHINA SAYS IT HAS CRACKED 'MAJOR' TERRORIST RING", 2010/06/22) reported that the PRC said Tuesday that it had uncovered an unspecified "major terrorist organization," a claim that came just ahead of the anniversary of bloody ethnic rioting in the far western region of Xinjiang. The Public Security Ministry gave little information in its brief announcement, which also coincided with the launch of a government propaganda campaign to promote patriotism in restive Xinjiang, following moves to strengthen security there. The announcement posted on the Public Security Ministry's website said only that police had "cracked a case involving a major terrorist organization." It said details would be given at a news conference Thursday.
