1. DPRK Nuclear Program

Yonhap (Byun Duk-kun, "N. KOREA PLEDGES TO START DISABLING NUCLEAR FACILITIES THIS WEEK", Panmunjom, 2007/10/29) reported that the DPRK Monday reconfirmed its pledge to start disabling its nuclear facilities this week during the first day of energy assistance talks. "Basically what the North Korean side said was that North Korea is moving to disable its nuclear facilities from Nov. 1 and faithfully implement its second-phase denuclearization measures under the February agreement," Lim Sung-nam, the ROK's chief delegate, told reporters. In return the DPRK "expects the other five nations to provide the economic and energy assistance promised in the Feb. 13 agreement in a timely manner," Lim added.

He stated, "a summit is more appropriate at the end of the process."

5. DPRK-Vietnam Relations

Korea Times (Jung Sung-ki, "KIM JONG-IL INTERESTED IN VIETNAMESE-STYLE REFORM POLICY", Seoul, 2007/10/28) reported that Yonhap News, citing the Sunday edition of the weekly Yazhou Zhoukan, a Hong Kong-based international Chinese business daily, said that DPRK leader Kim Jong-il has expressed his intention to follow the Vietnam-style "Doi Moi" economic reform and openness policy. Kim made the remarks during a meeting with Nong Duc Manh, secretary-general of Vietnam's Communist Party, in Pyongyang last week.

Yonhap (Yoo Cheong-mo, "SEOUL WELCOMES NORTH KOREAN LEADER'S REPORTED PLAN TO VISIT VIETNAM", Seoul, 2007/10/29) reported that Cheong Wa Dae spokesman Cheon Ho-seon on Monday reacted positively to the report that DPRK leader Kim Jong-il plans to visit Vietnam. ## 6. ROK-Japan Relations

Yomiuri Shimbun ("GOVT SHUNS SEOUL 'REGRET' OVER KIM", Tokyo, 2007/10/28) reported that ROK Ambassador to Japan Yu Myung-hwan planned to "express his country's regret" over the 1973 kidnapping in Tokyo of Kim Dae-jung to the Japanese government on Friday afternoon, but Foreign Minister Masahiko Komura refused to meet with him, citing scheduling difficulties. A Foreign Ministry official stated, "The ministry was unable to decide whether to accept the message as the following opinion was growing within the government: Despite the fact Japan's sovereignty was infringed as South Korea's public authority was exercised within Japan, is it acceptable for Japan to only accept a statement of regret on the matter by South Korea instead of a clear apology?"

Yomiuri Shimbun ("ROK PANEL MEMBERS SLAM JAPAN", Seoul, 2007/10/27) reported that members of the South Korean Development Committee for Clarifying the Past criticized Japan on Friday for its reaction to the probe into the 1973 Kim Dae-jung abduction. "If Japanese feel bad even after the release of this report, I think Japan is a tiny country," one committee member said.

7. Japan SDF Indian Ocean Mission

Kyodo ("ISHIBA TO ORDER MSDF FLEET TO RETURN HOME ON NOV. 1", Tokyo, 2007/10/27) reported that Defense Ministry sources said Saturday that Defense Minister Shigeru Ishiba will issue an evacuation order for the Maritime Self-Defense Force fleet involved in refueling operations in the Indian Ocean on Nov. 1, when the special antiterrorism law authorizing the mission expires. A supply vessel and a destroyer will leave early on Nov. 2 and will return home around three weeks later.

Asahi Shimbun ("ISHIBA SAYS CIVILIANS HAD RIGHT FUEL DATA", Tokyo, 2007/10/27) reported that Defense Minister Shigeru Ishiba on Friday admitted that not only uniformed officers but also civilian ministry officials knew what volume of fuel was provided in February 2003 to a U.S. Navy ship in the Indian Ocean. But Ishiba denied that the ministry's internal bureaus deliberately hid that four times as much fuel as first stated went to a U.S. tanker that refueled an aircraft carrier going on to an Iraq mission.

Associated Press (Dicky Sinn, "JAPAN, CHINESE PROTESTORS CLASH AT SEA", Hong Kong, 2007/10/28) reported that Japanese patrol vessels fired water cannon Sunday at a boat carrying activists from the China Federation of Defending Diaoyu Islands, who were protesting Japanese claims to territory in the East China Sea. The group's spokesman in Beijing, Li Nan, said the boat came to within eight miles of Diaoyu Island. "The Japanese used water cannon to disperse the boat to around 12 nautical miles (13 miles) away. They are now standing off in the waters," Li stated. Japan lodged a protest with the PRC through diplomatic channels Sunday following the incident, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said in a statement.
