2. UNSC on ROK Naval Ship Sinking

The Associated Press ("UNSC DRAFT CONDEMNS NKOREA FOR SKOREA SHIP SINKING", 2010/07/08) reported that the US has introduced a draft statement in the UN Security Council that would condemn the deadly sinking of a ROK warship and express "deep concern" at the finding of an international investigation that blamed the DPRK for torpedoing the vessel. However, the draft statement, obtained by The Associated Press, does not directly condemn or blame the DPRK for the March 26 attack. U.S. Ambassador Susan Rice told reporters the statement was agreed to by the five permanent council members — the US, Russia, PRC, Britain and France — as well as Japan and the ROK.

The Wall Street Journal ("CHINA STALLS U.N. EFFORTS AGAINST NORTH KOREA ", 2010/07/08) reported that the PRC is blocking a United Nations Security Council move to condemn the DPRK for the sinking of a ROK warship, say diplomats familiar with the negotiations. The PRC is refusing to blame the DPRK for the March sinking of the corvette Cheonan and won't label the incident an "attack," according to two Western diplomats. "The Chinese will only allow condemning the attack—but they don't want to use the words 'condemning' or 'attack,' " said one of the diplomats. "We have to find ways to condemn without 'condemning.' " The PRC also insists on calling the incident a "sinking," the diplomat added.

4. US-ROK Security Alliance

Chosun Ilbo ("U.S. POSTS PICTURES OF NUCLEAR SUB IN 'SHOW OF FORCE'", 2010/07/08) reported that the U.S. nuclear-powered submarine Michigan docked at a ROK naval base in Busan from the end of June until last Friday. In an unprecedented move, the U.S. Navy posted a photograph of the docked submarine on its website. Military experts say it was a show of force by the US against the PRC following the DPRK's sinking of the ROK Navy corvette Cheonan.

5. ROK Military

Yonhap News ("S. KOREA TO BOLSTER DEFENSE AGAINST NORTH'S UNCONVENTIONAL THREATS", 2010/07/08) reported that the ROK's defense ministry disclosed details of its proposed defense budget for next year that calls on bolstering defense capabilities against small-scale attacks by the DPRK. The Ministry of National Defense submitted last week its 2011 draft budget worth 31.6 trillion won (US$26.1 billion), up 6.9 percent or 2.05 trillion won from this year. The proposal is due for parliamentary approval at the end of the year. More than one-third of the planned increase for next year would be allocated to weapons programs for acquiring surveillance aircrafts to better detect the DPRK's unconventional threats with short-range missiles and submarines, the ministry said.

6. PRC on US-ROK Naval Exercise

Agence France-Presse ("CHINA WARNS AGAINST US-S.KOREA WAR GAMES", 2010/07/08) reported that the PRC warned the US and ROK against holding joint war games near its waters and urged the two nations to guard against exacerbating festering tensions with the DPRK. "China has expressed its serious concerns with relevant parties," foreign ministry spokesman Qin Gang told reporters when asked about the war games. "We are firmly opposed to foreign military vessels engaging in activities that undermine China's security interests in the Yellow Sea or waters close to China."

7. Inter-Korean Relations

Agence France-Presse ("S.KOREA SAYS N.KOREA'S BLUNDERS CAUSED TENSIONS", 2010/07/08) reported that the ROK's point man on the DPRK blamed the DPRK's leaders Thursday for icy cross-border relations, accusing them of blunders both at home and abroad. Unification Minister Hyun In-Taek said the DPRK has only itself to blame for its international isolation. "North Korea argues this (sour relations) happened because of our hardline policy, but the North Korea policy of our government is one based on engagement and embracement," Hyun told business executives.

8. US-DPRK Relations

United Press International ("NIXON WEIGHED NUKING NORTH KOREA", 2010/07/08) reported that US President Richard Nixon mulled using nuclear weapons against North Korea after its fighters shot down a U.S. spy plane in 1969, documents indicate. DPRK jets had shot down the U.S. EC-121 reconnaissance plane with 31 crew members aboard over international waters of the Sea of Japan, leaving Nixon trying to figure out what the appropriate response should be. National Public Radio reported former U.S. fighter pilot Bruce Charles says after the spy plane was shot down, he was put on alert in the ROK with a nuclear bomb loaded on his aircraft. After several hours, the order came to stand down, he said.

Tokyo's colonial rule over the Korean peninsula. Yoshito Sengoku, Japan's chief cabinet secretary, said Wednesday that Japan should clarify its position on post-war reparations for Koreans who had fallen victim to forced labor and sexual services during Tokyo's 1910-1945 colonial occupation. He reportedly added that the issue has soured Tokyo's ties with Seoul and that some "political measures" might be necessary.

Some government officials believe, however, it will be difficult to win the United States' consent for the alternative plan by the end of August, the deadline set under a Japan-U.S. joint statement in May for completion of a study on the location of the runway and the construction method.
