On Sept. 23, the US Embassy in Seoul presented the letters to four ROK conservative figures -- two pastors, a retired Army officer and a newspaper publisher -- in recognition of their efforts toward strengthening bilateral ties.

US, ROK Joint Training Exercise

Xinhua ("US MARINES COME TO S. KOREA FOR COMBAT TRAINING", 2004-10-18) reported that hundreds of US marines from Okinawa, Japan, are conducting combat training with ROK troops near the heavily armed inter-Korean border, according to an US military newspaper on Monday. About 450 US marines and sailors arrived in the ROK earlier this month aboard a high-speed boat to engage in a biannual joint exercise, dubbed the Korean Incremental Training Program (KITP), the Stars & Stripes said.

DPRK Military on US Aircraft Deployment

Yonhap ("N KOREA AT COMBAT READINESS ON DEPLOYMENT OF U.S. FIGHTERS, BOMBERS ", 2004-10-18) reported that the DPRK said Saturday that its military is at full combat readiness as the US has deployed dozens of strike aircraft in the ROK. Two separate squadrons of US F-15E fighter jets and F-117A stealth bombers have been deployed in the ROK for several months to familiarize themselves with the geographical features of the Korean Peninsula.

ROK on DPRK Attack

Joongang Ilbo ("NORTH ATTACK CALLED UNLIKELY", 2004-10-18) reported that at a National Assembly hearing yesterday, Defense Minister Yoon Kwang-woong was dismissive of the idea that the DPRK would use its long-range artillery on Seoul, saying that the DPRK doesn't want to be branded as war criminals. Asked about the possibility of such an attack, Mr. Yoon said, "There is a very slim chance of that happening."

ROK on DPRK Artillery Threat

Chosun Ilbo ("ALLIES COULD DESTROY N. KOREAN ARTILLERY IN 6-11 MINUTES ", 2004-10-18) reported that concerning the controversy surrounding the threat posed by DPRK long-range artillery to the Seoul metropolitan area, Defense Minister Yoon Kwang-ung said Monday, "If there were signs North Korea was going to launch long-range artillery strikes, our military could defeat [the artillery] in 6 to 11 minutes." This is the first time a high-ranking military official has officially mentioned the response time required by the DPRK military to respond to the DPRK artillery threat.

Kyodo News ("NORTH KOREA'S NO. 2 LEADER SAYS PYONGYANG WANTS TO SETTLE NUCLEAR DISPUTE THROUGH DIALOGUE", 2004-10-18) reported that the DPRK's No. 2 leader said Monday that Pyongyang still wants to settle to the dispute over its nuclear program through dialogue, as the PRC tried to cajole the DPRK back into stalled six-nation talks, calling for flexibility by all sides. "The situation of the Korean Peninsula is still complicated, but the North Korean side would like to find a peaceful solution of the nuclear issue through dialogue," state television quoted Kim as telling his PRC counterpart, Wu Bangguo.

Sino - DPRK Border Defense

Donga Ilbo ("N. KOREA'S FRONT LINE OF NATIONAL DEFENSE IS ALONG THE BORDER WITH CHINA, NOT S. KOREA ", 2004-10-18) reported that Japan's Sankei Shimbun, citing a knowledgeable source of the DPRK, reported on Friday that the DPRK leader Kim Jong Il commanded an increase of guards along the PRC borderline, assigning this area as the "number one front line of national defense." The Sankei Shimbun analyzed the reason for arranging intelligence agents along the national frontier and moving the military to guard the rear frontier is to serve as a preventive measure of group escape by the soldiers.

10

PRC, DPRK on Nuclear Talks

Reuters ("NORTH KOREA'S NO. 2 LEADER VISITS CHINA", 2004-10-18) reported that the DPRK's second-most senior leader toured a shiny new science park in Beijing Monday, a first stop on visit aimed at finding ways to help the DPRK's moribund economy as much as jump-starting stalled nuclear talks. The DPRK parliament chief Kim Yong-nam's visit comes during a renewed diplomatic push by the PRC to get the talks back on track.

Agence France-Presse ("JAPANESE OFFICIAL SAYS NORTH KOREA HOLDS NUCLEAR WEAPONS", 2004-10-18) reported that the DPRK has already completed the development of plutonium-based nuclear weapons with the help of Pakistan, a senior Japanese official said. The remarks by Chief Cabinet Secretary Hiroyuki Hosoda represent the first time a Japanese official has confirmed the DPRK's claim to have manufactured nuclear weapons, the Sankei Shimbun said.

Kyodo News ("HOSODA CORRECTS EARLIER COMMENTS ON N. KOREA NUCLEAR ARMS", 2004-10-18) reported that Japan's top government spokesman Hiroyuki Hosoda was forced in a Diet session Monday to correct an earlier remark that the DPRK possesses nuclear bombs. The move came only a few hours after Hosoda in a press conference defended his weekend remark and said taking the DPRK nuclear issue to the UN Security Council is a future option if the current six-party framework fails to make a breakthrough.

Financial Times ("PICKING A WAY ALONG ROCKY ROAD TO RECONCILIATION: THE OPENING OF A TRANSPORT CORRIDOR BETWEEN THE KOREAS IS ONLY THE START OF WHAT IS EXPECTED TO BE A LONG JOURNEY", 2004-10-18) reported that in spite of all the diplomatic

ructions over alleged nuclear programs on each side of the DMZ and tension about the increasing flow of defectors to the ROK, economic relations between the countries are steadily strengthening. The corridor is a practical example of the US's and ROK's divergent approaches to dealing with the DPRK. While President George W. Bush's administration has set high barriers to helping the DPRK - insisting that it get rid of its weapons first - President Roh Moo-hyun's government is seeking a reciprocal approach.

DPRK on IAEA Inspections

Korean Central News Agency of the DPRK ("IAEA CHIEF'S "PARTIAL" STANCE THREATENS TALKS", 2004-10-18) reported that IAEA Director-General Al-Baradi's biased attitude towards the nuclear issue between the DPRK and the US and the nuclear issue of the ROK prompts one to draw a conclusion that he is using the DPRK's open and legitimate nuclear activities as a pretext for hiding the ROK's nuclear issue. The dishonest forces of the IAEA are faithfully serving the US, a center of nuclear industrial complexes, and are resorting to high-handed and arbitrary practices based on mistrust in the relations with the DPRK.

ROK on Nuclear Experiment

Deutsche Presse-gentur ("MILITARY NUCLEARIZATION NO OPTION", SAYS SOUTH KOREA'S PREMIER", 2004-10-18) reported that ROK Prime Minister Lee Hai Chan said in an interview on Monday that military nuclearization is "no option" for his country. Meanwhile, opposition parties continued to heap criticism on the Uri Party plan yesterday.

DPRK on National Security Law

Korea Times ("N. KOREA THREATENS TO BOYCOTT DIALOGUE", 2004-10-18) reported that the DPRK is threatening to continue its boycott of inter-Korean talks if it finds any remnants of the ROK's anti-communist National Security Law after the legislation is abolished by the ruling Uri Party. "The Uri Party, which has been good at conjuring tricks to appear in favor of scrapping the security law, is now revealing its hypocritical, anti-unification attitude," the committee was quoted as saying by the DPRK's Korean Central New Agency.

DPRK Food Aid

", 2004-10-18) reported that the ROK officials conducted rare monitoring of food aid delivery to the DPRK last week, praising Pyongyang for cooperating in the verification process, Unification Ministry officials said Monday. The Associated Press ("REPORTS: N.KOREANS ENTER S.KOREA CONSULATE", 2004-10-18) reported that twenty people claiming to be DPRK asylum seekers scaled walls and crawled under barbed wire to reach the ROK Consulate in Beijing on Friday, ROK news reports said. Such asylum bids have become common in the PRC, with DPRK defectors who are fleeing famine and repression rushing into embassies, schools and other foreign facilities.

29

ROK on US Troop Realignment

ROK Defense Minister Yoon Kwang-ung will leave for the US Tuesday to hold annual talks, dubbed the Security Consultative Meeting (SCM), with his US counterpart Donald Rumsfeld, the ministry said in a news release.

ROK Sex Trade

Korea Herald ("U.S. FORCES ALSO CRACK DOWN ON PROSTITUTION ", 2004-10-18) reported that no more slaps on the wrist for soldiers venturing up Itaewon's "Hill" and to other areas known as places to buy sex. Starting next year, USFK servicemen convicted of doing so may face stiff penalties of time in jail and a dishonorable discharge. The announcement was made last month from Washington that pending changes to an article of the Uniform Code of Military Justice will wipe out the grey areas defining penalties for buying sex and allow military courts to kick people out of the military for doing so.

32

Kyodo ("PSI DRILL TO INTERCEPT WMD TO BE HELD OCT. 26 NEAR TOKYO", 2004-10-18) reported that Japan, the US, Australia and France will take part in a joint maritime exercise to intercept weapons of mass destruction Oct. 26 in waters southwest of Tokyo, Japanese officials said

34

Japan UNSC Role

Reuters ("FIVE NATIONS WIN SEATS ON U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL", 2004-10-18) reported that Argentina, Denmark, Greece, Japan and Tanzania on Friday won coveted two-year terms on the UN Security Council at a time when pressure is mounting to expand the powerful 15-nation body. In Tokyo, Foreign Minister Nobutaka Machimura said Japan would use its two-year seat to help build the case for Security Council reforms including a permanent seat for itself.

35

US - Japan Security Alliance

Reuters ("JAPAN POLICE SEND U.S. RAPE SUSPECT TO PROSECUTORS", 2004-10-18) reported that an American man working for the US military was handed to Japanese prosecutors for questioning on Saturday following his arrest on suspicion of raping a woman on the island of Okinawa, a police spokesman said. Okinawa, Japan's poorest prefecture and home to about half the US military presence in Japan, has long resented bearing what many see as an unfair burden for maintaining the US-Japan security alliance, the pillar of Tokyo's postwar diplomacy.

Japan on US Presidential Elections

Reuters ("JAPAN RULING PARTY EXECUTIVE SLAMS KERRY ON N.KOREA", 2004-10-18) reported that The No. 2 official in Japan's ruling party sharply criticized US Democratic challenger John Kerry's DPRK policy on Friday and said he hoped President Bush would be re-elected, media said. "No matter what the results of the election may be, the ties between the United States and Japan are solid."

37

Japan on Sino-Japanese Relations

Agence France-Presse ("KOIZUMI UNSWAYED BY CHINESE CRITICISM OVER VISITS TO WAR SHRINE", 2004-10-18) reported that Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi says he remains unswayed by the PRC's criticism of his visits to a Tokyo war shrine, saying the Japanese should choose for themselves how to honour their dead. "I know the issue is not pleasant for China. But as a Japanese, I do not think it is bad to visit, pay respect and give thanks to the war dead," Koizumi said during a legislative hearing.

38

PRC on Sino-Japanese Relations

Kyodo News ("CHINA PERPLEXED BY JAPANESE COMMENTS ON GAS EXPLORATION", 2004-1-18) reported that the PRC Foreign Ministry has no knowledge of reported PRC gas exploration plans in an area Japan designates as its own economic waters, but is asking related government quarters for information, a senior ministry official said Monday. Top Japanese government officials said earlier in the day Japan will urge the PRC to stop its gas exploration projects if they fall on the Japanese side of the "median line," a Japanese-designated line of separation of the two countries' economic zones.

ROK on Cross Strait Relations

Joongang Ilbo ("CHINA ASKS KIM NOT TO MAKE VISIT TO TAIWAN ", 2004-10-18) reported that the PRC has asked former ROK President Kim Young-sam to cancel a planned visit to Taiwan, but Mr. Kim's aides said he would go. During a visit to Japan last week, Mr. Kim told friends there that a private group in Taiwan had invited him. The invitation led the PRC government to ask him not to go.

40

Sino - Russian Relations

Reuters ("PUTIN'S CHINA VISIT LEAVES QUESTION MARKS ABOUT OIL", 2004-10-18) reported that Russian President Vladimir Putin met several top officials in the PRC Friday, winding up two days of official talks that were rich in symbolism but left unanswered many key questions about energy supplies to the PRC. Despite his calls to the PRC partners to increase the quota of high-tech in bilateral trade, Russian officials said off the record that supplies of oil and expected sales of natural gas to the PRC would remain dominant.

Sino - Mongolian Relations

Oyu Tolgoi ("FINDING A MOTHER LODE IN MONGOLIA", 2004-10-18) reported that in the table-flat vastness of the Gobi Desert, only a dusty spider web of roads linking 11 drilling rigs hints at the riches below: about $60 billion worth of copper and gold, one of the five largest copper deposits known in the world. This mineral province only 50 miles north of the PRC, is to burst into life again, driven by an industrializing PRC that is scouring the globe for minerals.

42

PRC Peacekeeping Role in Haiti

Los Angeles Times ("CHINESE POLICE JOIN PEACEKEEPING FORCE", 2004-10-18) reported that Haiti's interim prime minister accused ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide of directing a wave of violence from exile, while 95 PRC police arrived for their first UN peacekeeping role in the Western Hemisphere.
