2. US on DPRK Counterfeiting

Chosun Ilbo ("NORTH'S COUNTERFEITING NOT HELPING U.S.-NORTH KOREA RELATIONS ", 2005-10-13) reported that according to the State Department, the DPRK's continued involvement in counterfeiting is not helping its relations with the US. Spokesman Adam Ereli told reporters his government was seeking the extradition of Northern Ireland's Worker's Party chief Sean Garland, who has been indicted on suspicion of circulating counterfeit US banknotes of DPRK origin. The way US-DPRK relations progress is highly contingent on the DPRK's implication in illegal activities, the human rights situation and its nuclear weapons programs, Ereli said. However, he stressed the counterfeiting issue was not a topic for discussion at six party talks.

The 11th round of inter-Korean talks on economic cooperation is scheduled to open on Oct. 25.

In one segment of the show, three DPR Korean martial arts specialists kicked, punched and subdued 30 unnamed enemies. The "enemies" were dressed in uniforms identical to those worn by the RO Korean military before 1990. Unification Ministry and intelligence sources said the DPRK leader Kim Jong-il watched the show Sunday and that his "on-the-scene inspection" may have triggered the cut.

He also said the DPRK is ready to soften its stance on the settlement of the problem of Japanese citizens that had been kidnapped by the DPRK's intelligence in the 1970s-1980s. Some analysts believe the softening of Pyongyang's policy towards Tokyo is linked to the fact that the DPRK seeks to use Japan, which is the US main ally, for getting concessions from Washington as regards the nuclear problem settlement.

26. #222

CanKor ("US NEGOTIATOR HILL: TIME FOR 'REAL ACTION' ON DPRK ", 2005-10-06) Christopher Hill, US Envoy to the Six-Party Talks, testifies to the House Committee on International Relations. The 19 September joint statement, he says, gives a vision of the end-point of the process, the verifiable denuclearization of the DPRK. Although the statement also takes note of the DPRK's assertion that it has the right to peaceful uses of nuclear energy, Hill made "crystal clear" that discussion of the provision of a light water nuclear reactor would take place only after credible verification that the DPRK has eliminated all its nuclear weapons and all nuclear programs. Hill urges the termination of KEDO, and the creation of "new, more secure, arrangements to carry out denuclearization."

\(return to top\) CanKor ("TWO FILMS OPEN IN USA, REFLECT SHIFT IN KOREAN ATTITUDES ", 2005-10-05) Two Korean films make their debut in New York. The President's Last Bang is an irreverent portrayal of the presidency of ROK General Park Chung Hee. \(return to top\) CanKor ("FOCUS: TURBULENCE IN DPRK TOURISM", 2005-10-13) This week's CanKor FOCUS reviews the progress of DPRK tourism, the industry that blazed a trail in inter-Korean commercial engagement across the DMZ, albeit fraught with scandal and controversy. Hyundai Asan, operator of the first tourism venture in the DPRK, is once again embroiled in controversy. The Hyundai Group weathered allegations of bribing the Kim

Jong Il regime into the 2000 inter-Korean summit. It suffered the loss of chairman Chung Mong-hun to suicide as he faced charges for his involvement. Now Vice-chairman Kim Yoon-kyu is accused of misappropriating South-North cooperation funds. Current chairwoman Hyun Jeong-eun dismisses Kim Yoon-kyu and welcomes an investigation, eager for more transparency in the Hyundai Group's business with the DPRK. In protest, Pyongyang slashes the tourist quota to the Kumgang Resort and suspends additional projects in Kaesong and Mt. Paektu that were at the trial stage. This provides opportunities for the competition. ROK's powerful Lotte Tourism is poised to sign a deal to operate tours to Kaesong. \(return to top\) CanKor ("REBUILDING A TEMPLE, NARROWING A GAP ", 2005-09-29) Other inter-Korean projects that will benefit the tourism industry on the Peninsula include the richly symbolic restoration of the Holy Valley Temple, a Buddhist historic site bombed during the Korean War. \(return to top\) CanKor ("DPRK ALLOWING US VISITORS FOR ARIRANG", 2005-1-02) American passport holders interested in a rare tourism opportunity are welcomed to Pyongyang this month to experience the breathtaking mass Arirang gymnastics festival.
