Korean Peninsula

1. Japan-DPRK Talks

Japan and the DPRK concluded talks in Pyongyang on Friday without reaching any major breakthroughs. The two sides agreed to hold a second round of talks in late May in Tokyo.

3. DPRK-ROK Talks

DPRK Foreign Minister Paek Nam-sun, on a visit to Germany, welcomed ROK President Kim Dae-jung's call for direct ROK-DPRK talks, but reiterated the DPRK's contention that the ROK must first accept certain preconditions. Germany urged the DPRK to accept the ROK's offer. ROK officials said that they expected to reach an agreement soon on holding talks.

7. Cross-Straits Relations PRC Vice Premier Qian Qichen said in a speech that Taiwan President-elect Chen Shui-bian must take "substantial steps" to win the PRC's trust. US officials said that they believed that the PRC is taking a "wait and see" approach to Chen's election. Taiwan officials denied that Jeremy Stone of the Federation of American Scientists had traveled to the PRC as an unofficial envoy from Taiwan.

Japan

11. Japanese Prime Minister

Yoshiro Mori, the number two official in the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, was named new Prime Minister of Japan, replacing Keizo Obuchi, who remained in a coma after suffering a massive stroke. In his first speech, Mori pledged to try to improve relations with the PRC and the DPRK while retaining strong cooperation with the US and the ROK.
