About VX

Recommended Citation

"About VX", pegasus, January 01, 1994, https://nautilus.org/pegasus/about-vx/

About Virtual Expeditions

Virtual Expeditions is motivated by a desire to open up the walls of the classroom to the global community. VX supports online teaching and learning by:

- Selecting, organizing and annotating a set of the most relevant online resources.
- Transforming the process of surfing the web into engaging learning activities.
- Offering an online library complete with links, selected articles, interviews, maps, and charts.
- Providing access to a network of guides and mentors who add their voices and knowledge to the expeditions.
- Offering a school-to-school directory that allows you and your students to connect with peers around the world.

We consider Virtual Expeditions a "work in progress" and an experiment in online learning. Among our goals for the program:

- To make available innovative curriculum resources that meet national standards and encourage best practices in teaching and learning.
- To develop and test student-centered, project-based learning activities that utilize the World Wide Web.
- To give students meaningful opportunities to interact with guides, mentors and resource organizations.
- To provide a channel for students and teachers from different schools to communicate and collaborate with one another.
- To foster an understanding of how to use the Internet for research, communication and action.

We invite your feedback and ideas as the program develops.

View this online at: https://nautilus.org/pegasus/about-vx/

Nautilus Institute
608 San Miguel Ave., Berkeley, CA 94707-1535 | Phone: (510) 423-0372 | Email: nautilus@nautilus.org