

US-DPRK Village Wind Power Project: Gallery

May 12, 1998

In Onch'on, DPRK: Planning briefing for the DPRK wind energy project.

Laying out the tower rigging.

Using new tools to bolt together the tower base.

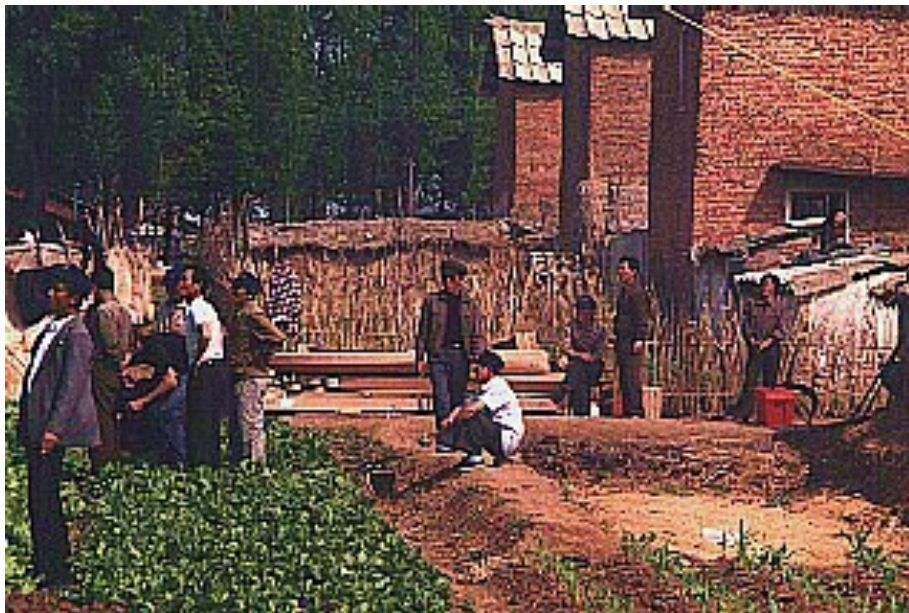

Solving a technical issue together -- Jim Williams (third from right), Chris Greacen (at right), and DPRK technicians.

Drilling the tower anchor into the field

Laying out the tower pipe in the vegetable field.

Will it really go up? Everyone is a little nervous, including a villager watching from his door.

| Project Info |

May 13, 1998

DPRK lead engineer Paek directs the team.

Raising the 100-foot tower with two anemometers... gently does it!

Raising the tower... carefully, slowly, safely.

Lead engineers Paek (DPRK) and Sagrillo (US) check that the tower is vertical.

DPRK technician installs wind measuring anemometer on tower.

Peter Hayes toasts the success of Mission 1

The tower with the village behind it.

Medic clinic to be electrified in the village.

Kindergarten to be electrified in the village.

Kindergarten to be electrified

Small DPRK-made wind turbine atop restaurant in Nampo, DRPK

| Project Info |